providing the unique perspectives of former top U.S. Department of Justice Antitrust Division lawyers from both the civil and criminal sides.

Staples Announces Plans to Purchase Office Depot: Will Its Third Attempt Be More Successful?

February 11, 2021

Staples' parent company recently announced plans for an attempt to buy all outstanding stock of Office Depot's parent company (ODP) for $2.1 billion, stating that it will pursue an all-cash tender offer in March if the parties cannot reach an...

What's Ahead in 2021 for Reverse-Payment Settlement Litigation

January 8, 2021

Litigation concerning reverse-payment settlements remains active. In the coming year, we expect to see material developments regarding treatment of non-monetary settlements of underlying patent litigation, as courts continue to grapple with what constitutes a "large and unjustified" payment. Likewise, we...
